No. 1102 Hull Street. \( \)
The adjourned meeting of the Manchester Council was held lest night in the Council Chamber. Mr. Utz presided.
Just after the meeting was called to Just after the meeting was called to order, Mr. Montague, who was waiting for the crowd in Leader building to congregate, came in the Council Chamber. An intermission was taken for ten minutes, in order for the Councilmen to see and talk with him. He asked a good many questions about the Council and expressed his appreciation of their courtesy and consideration.

expressed his appreciation of their contesy and consideration.

The Council again went into session and the recommendations of the Street Committee were adopted. The election of city scavenger was gone into and the names of Messrs, Tingle and Cole were placed in nomination. Mr. Tingle was elected by a vote of five to three. A letter was read from Mr. W. W. Pool, of the Light Committee, recommending. of the light Committee, recommending that a light Committee, recommending that a light be placed on Twelfth and Short Streets. Mr. Bradley moved that the Light Committee be instructed to place the light; also one on Ninth and Semmes Streets. This was adopted.

Mr. Broaddus presented an ordinance providing that a proper fence be erected in Maury Cemetery, dividing the colored from the white sections. The ordinance requires gates to be put on Perdue Ave-que to enter from separate directions. It was referred to the Cemetery Committee to report back to the next meeting.

HULL-STREET CAR LINE.
Mr. Wakefield asked the City Attorney why a car was not run from Seventh Street down Hull to First Street. Judge Clopton said the first railway franchise in the city, granted in 1895, left the city in a defenseless position as to car service. The next franchise was to the Man-chester Railway and Improvement Com-pany, June 1, 1891. This was obtained by several persons, who were then large

Mr. Fisher tried to get control of the lines in the city in 1894, and then it was that the Councilmen awoke to a sense of their duty and made the ordinance more exacting. This ordinance required the company to run the cars of both lines over the same bridge should either bridge become unsafe. He said the Council had the power to force the rallway company to put lighter cars on Mayo's Bridge, but the company claimed it was not safe to run a light car over there now.

Mr. Wakeheld moved that the Auditor be instructed to request the Passanger and Power Company to run a car on lower Hull Street from six in the morning will seven at night. Mr. Utz sald he wisned to inform the Manchester people that a transfer gotten from the Hull Street line to any line in Richmond could be used any time in the day.

The property turned out to be worthless, so far as its mari deposits were concerned, and Barcus brought suit to recover with above result. Mr. Barcus and his attorney, Mr. Sherwood, have been here for several weeks, negotiating settlements with certain parties to the suit, residing in the city. Wednesday he scene of the trans-action was removed to Newport News, the home of Mr. Henley. The plaintiff, accompanied by his attorney, Mr. Sherwood, United States Marshal Morgan Treat and Deputy Marshal Bland, arrived in that city early, and proceeded at once to Mr. Henley's office, where, in accordance with the order of the court, the officers levied upon such property as was found in Mr. Henley's omce and was sub-

"Castleton." the blue grass farm belonging to the estate of Mr. A. J. Ford, has been purchased by Mr. James R. Keene, of New York, and in a few days will be transfered to its new owner. The farm lies in the famous region of Kentucky surrounding Lexington, and is one of the most celebrated stock farms in the State. The sale was made by Mr. in the State. The sale was made by Mr price said to have been paid for the property is $85,000. Mr. Allan expects to leave to-day for Lexington to close the transaction.

The purchaser, Mr. Reene, is one of the famous horse breeders of New York, and expects to make Castleton his home and continue to raise thoroughbreds in the blue grass region.

AMUSEMENTS.

Charles B. Hanford has chosen wisely in selecting "The Taming of the Shrew" for this season's tour. He has probably never played a part that fits him so well well known as an excellent Shakesperean actor, but lew of his admirers would have predicted the success that he has attained in this role. Physically he is an ideal Petruchio, and his conception of the character was evidently the result of careful study. His best acting was in the third act. There can be no question of his personal success, and he was ap-plauded warmly and vigorously through out the evening. The play is one of the most delightful of Shakespeare's comedies, and the large audience at the Academy last night enjoyed it thoroughly Helen Grantly is a beautiful woma for the role, and she lacks experience. Of the supporting company William J. Shea as Grumio did the best work. The scenery was handsome. "The Old Guad" was given as a curtain raised, and it was excellently done. Mr. Hanford took the lear-cut, convincing and worthy of the highest praise. There will be a mating

Thirty feet of bowels are packed away in your insides and must be kept clean, in order to do business. It's a long way, with many turns and pitfalls to catch the refuse and clog the channel if not most carefully cleaned out every day. When this long canal is blockaded, look out for trouble—furred tongue, bad breath, belching of gases, yellow spots, pimples and boils, headaches, spitting up of food after eating—an all-around disgusting nuisance.

Violent calomel purges or griping salts are dangerous to use for cleaning out the bowels. They force out the obstruction by causing violent spasms of the bowels, but they leave the intestines weak and even less able to keep up regular movements than before, and make a larger dose necessary next time.

Then you have the pill habit, which kills more people than the morphine and whiskey habits combined.

The only safe, gentle but certain bowel cleansers are sweet, fragrant CASCARETS, because they don't force out the foecal matter with violence, but act as a tonic on the whole 30 feet of bowel wall, strengthen the muscles and restore healthy, natural action. Buy and try them! (Look out for imitations and substitutes or you can't get results. Cascarets are never sold in bulk. Look for the trade-mark, the long tailed "C" on the box.) You will find that in an entirely natural way your bowels will be promptly and permanently cured by Cascarets.

JUDAISM VERSUS SYNAGOGISM

Winter Sermons.

JUDAISM IS PERSONAL.

Dr. Calisch Delivers the First of His

He Speaks of the High Ideals of Chastity, "Justice and Righteousness-The Strength and Glory of the Jewish Religion.

Rabbi E. N. Calisch delivered an eloquent sermon before a large congregation at Beth Ahaba Synagogue last night. The discourse was te first of his winter sermons, delivered on Friday evening and was upon the subject of Judaism versus Synagogism. He chose for his text: Ezekiel xx., 41: "I will be sanctified through you before the eyes of the nations." After a few introductory words regarding religious festivals that are based upon historic incidents or have their reason in an appeal to the religious sent ment, Dr. Calisch said in part: THE SYNAGOGUE.

Do we maintain the synagogue to-day because it is an historic institution or because it has a forceful, vital appeal to us to-day—a message for the life of the twentieth century?

Does the synagogue stand to us to-day for more than merely the concrete expression of a time-honored form of human thought? Or does it sound a note that has its place in the meloly of mod-that has its place in the melody of mod-ern aspiration and conduct? There can be but one answer which onscience and reason can give. The synagogue stands for Judalsm in so tar only as it promotes and energises Judalsm. It is the fountain and inspiration of life and character; but the stream must flow beyond its source, and the inspira-tion must be made manifest beyond the walls of the physical structure. You ask what do I mean by synagogism? I mean the institution, the concrete and material expression of faith as seen in the synaexpression of fatth as seen in the sym-gogue in this building, and its appurte-nances, its worship and its school. By Judaism i mean the translation into con-duct of the principles, ideals and doc-trines of the Jewish religion, the making of character and moral carriage to cor-respond to those high ideals of chastity, justice and righteousness which are the strength and the glory of the Jewish re-

MAINTAIN IDEALS. For the maintenance and promulgation of these ideals the synagogue is necesmaintenance of physical existence. But that is far short of true life which does nothing more than seek its bread and is satisfied when bread is put into its mouth. its food, and then with glutted stomach sleeps till hunger shall cause it to seek its food again. Is our life to be lived there be no thought, no hope, no ideal higher than the gratification of material desires? There are some human beings that so think and act, but I can see no place for them in the economy of human progress except to remind us of what we should not be. Til re are those, similarly, who think that their full duty in religious life is done when they, so to speak, pro-vide its food. They conceive that their whole task is performed when they help maintain the synagogue, when they pay their dues and their pew rent, when they occasionally attend the service, and mayhap send their children to the Sundayschool. Beyond this they feel no moral obligation, no religious responsibility, no spiritual accountableness, no personal amenability to conscience or to the laws of truth or honor or justice or righteousoing their full duty as Jews when they live their life thus, upon a low, sordid and sensual level. They are indignant, Not true Jews? Why, do they not pay their dues? Do they not even condecend to come occasionally to the service? What if they do find life's fullest measure in the pursuit of sensual pleasure? Do they not help to maintain the symagogue? This is synagogism. But it is not

Judaism is more than institutional. It is personal. It is for more than one day in the week. It is for every hour of consclous life. It is more than worship by ritual. It is the worship of conduct. It is a service that has no stated hour or place, but should be performed at all hours and in every place, in business, pleasure and rest. It is the santification of life as a service unto God. It is me santification of the name of God by noble conduct done in His name. Isaiah v. 16 says: "God, the Holy One, is sanctified by righteousness." Prof. Lazarus, in his Ethics of Judaism (vol. ii., page 15) says that this thought of "the sanctification of God, the Hollest Being, through man, may be called absolutely the most audamay be called absolutely the most auda-cious, the most exalted, * * * the sublimest notion of the human mind." And this is Judaism-this sanctification of life, this rule of conduct that is framed and guid d

A man may be good and honorable and righteous on purely ethical, even utilitarian grounds. So he can, but (as Prof. Lazarus exemplided) if every act of his is performed with the thought of his parents ever present-to give them pleasure, to honor them, to show gratitude to them, his deeds may remain unchanged, but they have a nobler meaning, a finer value. Thus, to an infinitely greater degree, is life ennobled and glorified with the life ennobled and glorided with the of the nations-not by ritual nor lengthy ceremonial, nor elaborate liturgy, but by the sanctification of life, the ennoble-ment of conduct, the enrichment of conduct, the enrichment of char-actur. For this is Judaian.
